

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

To achieve an improvement in recognition performance, a non-speech acoustic model correction unit adapts a non-speech acoustic model representing a non-speech state using input data observed during an interval immediately before a speech recognition interval during which speech recognition is performed, by means of one of the most likelihood method, the complex statistic method, and the minimum distance-maximum separation theorem.